

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to a high-performance system on a chip which uses multi-layer wiring/insulation through-hole interconnections to provide short wiring and controlled low-impedance wiring including ground planes and power supply distribution planes between chips.

5